Problems of a Growing City

The housing and labor demands upon Hope and her territory are not the only things in which we will be found unprepared as construction activity at the War Department's Proving Ground spirals upward. Best advice is that things will start "happening" after the Fourth of July holiday period.

Woman Killed by Jollop, and Races Canceled

Mrs. E. F. Coleman Dies of Broken Neck When Hit by Wheel

Mrs. E. F. Coleman, 24, spectator at the weekly jollop races at the fair park here, was killed late Sunday afternoon when a jollop, driven by William Robins of Hope, struck her on the head, breaking her neck. She died about an hour after the accident.

After losing the wheel Robins avoided possible further accident to himself and by-standers by retaining control of the jollop, driving perhaps 100 yards down the track before finally leaving the road at a reduced speed.

Another Accident
In another of the races Sunday a jollop driven by Porter Reed of Hope overturned while passing another auto. Reed was unhurt except for minor cuts and bruises.

2nd Fatal Accident
This was the second fatal accident resulting from the jollop races here. Billy Liston of Texarkana, driver of one of the cars, was killed on the same track last year.

No More Races
The local American Legion post, sponsors of the races, announced officially following the accident, that all other races would be cancelled.

Mrs. Coleman is survived by her husband, E. F. Coleman, a 3-year-old son, Wayne; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Pennington of Hot Springs; three sisters, Mrs. Mamie Hill, Mildred and Hazel Pennington; Mrs. Monroe Pennington of Hot Springs; and a brother, Vernon Pennington, all of Hot Springs.

Funeral services will be held at Mount Valley, Ark., at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Asks Senate Investigation

Wheeler Hints Navy Begins Shooting on Patrols

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senator Wheeler proposed Monday that the Senate investigate whether American naval vessels have begun shooting in patrol activities.

Wheeler said Secretary Knox declined to affirm or deny that an American warcraft sunk a German submarine and added in a statement that "it is our duty to determine facts."

Wheeler offered a resolution suggesting that an investigation be conducted.

"If we have begun shooting, if we are in an undeclared war, the constitution which provides that only congress can declare war, has been violated," he said.

"Persons ordered or authorized the shooting should be identified and for any violation of the law of the land should be made to suffer," Wheeler said.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

Fourth of July

There are 31 days in July, but none is as famous in America as the fourth.

Here is a patriotic parcel of questions about that certain day and the month of July in general.

1. By what other name is the Fourth of July known? When was it first celebrated?

2. In what state did the Fourth first become a legal holiday?

3. Is July 4 a national holiday?

4. What country once celebrated July 14 as a holiday?

5. What three U. S. presidents died on July 4, and what one was born on that date?

Germans Claim They Are Half Way to Moscow

Capture of Minsk Is Reported Officially From Berlin

BERLIN —(AP)— Germany said Monday night that on the northern part of the Russian frontier the Nazis were in pursuit of retreating Russians and that disorder had gone so far that there no longer was a proper front.

To Defend Moscow
MOSCOW —(AP)— All able bodied men and women of Leningrad and other surrounding towns were conscripted Monday night for work on the city's defenses.

The government called all men from 16 to 30 and women from 16 to 45, excepting those already doing defense work.

Second Daylight Attack
LONDON —(AP)— Authorized quarters reported Monday that the RAF had attacked docks at Kiel, German naval base, for the second of two daylight raids.

By the Associated Press
German panzer columns striking through the Russian army defenses were reported Monday to be half-way to Moscow in a sweep that already has passed Lwow, in former Poland, and, according to reports from Berlin, has resulted in the capture of Minsk, 20 miles inside the old Russian frontier.

A Nazi spokesman said Hitler's invasion forces were already in sight of Smolensk, 200 miles east of Minsk on the road to Moscow. Smolensk is about at the half-way mark to the Soviet capital.

May Trap Russians
The spokesman said a pocket was being formed around the Russian troops in the Smolensk region and the war bulletin once again implied that Russian resistance was crumbling under the impact of Adolf Hitler's lightning tactics executed by a force which Russia herself estimated at more than 2,500,000 troops—presumably including all of Germany's allies.

The German high command announced the capture of Ibbau, on the Baltic sea. DNE, official German news agency, said the ring around the Red army in the Baltic region, was narrow and tight that destruction was certain.

DNE said several hundred tanks and 42 large guns at Rawa Ruska, 40 miles northwest of Lwow, were captured and destroyed.

"During the night our troops continued stubborn fighting in the Minsk, Dvinsk, Minsk and Luck sectors," a Russian communiqué said. In other sectors frequent troop regroupings and artillery duels took place, it was said.

The roar of cannonading was reported heard in the major sections along most of the front from the Baltic to the Black sea.

A communiqué from Hitler's headquarters said "Lwow was taken Monday and the Reich warflag has been flying there since 3:20 p. m. Sunday. The city lies 50 miles inside the Sovietized Poland."

In the same sector two years ago routed Polish troops were forced to give in to German forces who later yielded it to Russia.

Russians Fighting
While German claimed successes it was apparent that with the exception of Minsk, the Russian Red army was still fighting west of the 1939 frontier.

In addition a Moscow communiqué declared that German attempts to knife across the Karelin isthmus from Finland, which is now fighting beside Germany, and attempts to land troops on the Gulf of Finland were repulsed.

The seaport is on the Gulf of Finland 74 miles from Leningrad.

The war bulletin said the Russians were still holding against attacks from Minsk and the Barents sea to the vicinity of Minsk and also south between Lwow and Luck to the Ukraine.

France Breaks With Russia

Severs Diplomatic Relations; 200 Persons Held

VICHY —(AP)— France Monday severed relations with Russia and it was learned that at least 200 persons, Soviet diplomats and consulates, were held for questioning.

The 200 Russians were concentrated in a stadium outside of Vichy where Sunday Premier Petain presented a flag to the French youth labor camps.

For 24 hours all roads to and from Vichy were closely guarded. As soon as the break was known the Russians informed the U. S. Embassy. It was not known who will take over the Russian interests in France but it was expected to be Sweden.

The break followed a week-end of conferences between French and Russian officials. It was said that France had taken the initiative because it was learned with certainty that Soviet diplomats and consuls in France were carrying out activities "against the best interests of the state."

List of Stamp Foods for July

Announced for Hempstead by Stanley E. Munro

The list of foods available during July for purchase with blue stamps by families taking part in the Food Stamp Plan in Hempstead was announced Monday by Stanley E. Munro, Local Stamp Plan Representative.

These foods are obtainable in local stores throughout the month of July. Fresh peaches and fresh vegetables (includes potatoes, all fresh vegetables, except those processed, frozen, canned, dried, or pickled, but does not include melons) have been added to the list of food which will be available nationally during July, while fresh grapefruit and fresh apples obtainable during June in all areas are not included in the July list.

With the revisions the complete list of "Blue Stamp Foods" for the period July 1 through July 31 in all Stamp Plan areas is as follows: fresh oranges, fresh peaches, fresh vegetables (including potatoes, all fresh vegetables, except those processed, frozen, canned, dried, or pickled, but does not include melons) pork lard, all pork (except that cooked or packed in metal or glass containers), corn meal, shell eggs, dried prunes, hominy (corn), germs, dry edible beans, wheat flour and whole wheat (graham) flour, and raisins.

Only four states in the Union are larger than the Philippine Islands.

County Gets Gas Turnback

Hope to Receive $792.12 Out of $1,081.80 Total

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)— State Treasurer Earl Page Monday made the first annual distribution of $150,000 in gasoline turnback funds to municipalities and counties.

The $150,000 will be divided $75,000 to cities and $75,000 to counties with distribution of cities being based on a population basis and to counties on a basis of sales.

Distribution to counties included: Hempstead $1,081.80; distribution to cities included: Hope, $792.12.

New 7% Auto Tax Agreed on

Ways & Means Committee to Recommend New Tax

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Members of the House Ways and Means Committee agreed Monday to recommend a 7 per cent tax on the sale price of new automobiles which would produce about $79,000,000 of new revenue instead of the 15 per cent levy proposed by the treasury.

Members said a spirited fight preceded the agreement on the lower figure and a 10 per cent compromise was defeated.

Hope Resident Dies Sunday

E. L. Brown Succumbs in Hospital at Shreveport

E. L. Brown, 68, resident of Hope for the past seven years, died in a Shreveport hospital at 7:35 Sunday night. Mr. Brown came to Hope from Camden, Tenn.

Funeral services will be held at the home here at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Zonetta Stell and a son, Clarence Brown, both of Shreveport; a grandchild, Clarence Brown, Jr., 2 sisters, Mrs. Alphan Anderson and Mrs. Dovie Jordan both of Huntington, Tenn.

Ivory is not always white. Black, brown and even rose-colored tusks have been found on African elephants.

Radish, Beet, Cabbage Seeds Generally Imported

By NEA Service
BELTSVILLE, Md. — It's okay with Junior that the war has ploughed up America's supply lines to the vegetable gardens of Europe. As a result, he probably won't have to eat so much spinach for a while. But to Junior's parents, who grow many of their own vegetables in the back yard, America's being cut off from vegetable seed importation from Europe raises serious problems.

In the past, the U. S. has been almost entirely dependent for its spinach crop on seed imported from the Low Countries. Denmark has supplied almost all of America's cauliflower seed. The Canary Islands have contributed heavily with onion seed.

Over half a million pounds of radish seed have been imported in one year from the Netherlands. Domestic supplies of beet, cabbage, chard, carrot and many herb seeds have been greatly supplemented by imports from the Near East countries.

Heat and Humidity Spoil Many Seeds
Without these imports, American gardeners, large and small, face the problem of conserving their own supplies in such a way that they will grow strong, healthy plants the next year. The problem is particularly pressing for Southern farmers and seedsmen, for heat and humidity spoil the seeds of many vegetables in a very short time.

To determine safe storage conditions for various vegetable seeds, Dr. E. R. Toole, U. S. Department of Agriculture scientist, has been conducting a series of experiments at the Bureau of Plant Industry's Horticultural Station here at Beltsville. He thinks that he has found the answer.

The key to the problem is two-fold: keeping seed dry and keeping it cool. As a first step, Dr. Toole spreads the seed out in a thin layer in a dry, airy place to dry before storing. An attic or a normally heated room will serve well, and, unless the air is moist, an electric fan will speed up the drying process.

When the seed is thoroughly dried, it should be placed in an air-tight container, such as a sealed fruit jar, and kept in a cool place. For the backyard farmer, an ordinary refrigerator serves more than adequately.

Long-Lived Under Correct Conditions
Dr. Toole tested many temperatures and humidities before arriving at these conclusions. After storing seeds at various experimental temperatures and humidities, he placed them on moist blotting paper where they would germinate if they were still alive.

A strict control of healthy plants after a few weeks quickly determined the relative values of the various storage conditions.

Experimenting with onion seed, for example, Dr. Toole found that at 80 deg. F. and 80 per cent humidity the seed was completely worthless after twelve weeks. When, however, the temperature was lowered to 50 deg. F. and humidity lowered to 50 per cent, the onion seed germinated in perfect condition after a full year's storage.

Army to Call 50,000 Youths to Be Inducted Soon

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Army probably will call up about 50,000 selectees a month during the last half of this year and a big percentage of these will be from the ranks of youths who register Tuesday, July 1, National Selective Service headquarters said Monday.

A system has been worked out to intersperse the newest registrants in the list of those who enrolled last October, it was said.

The system will make many of the youths who sign Tuesday quickly available for service—a welcome result to the Army high command which regards youths just 21 as ideal soldier material.

The announcement came as final arrangements were completed for the second registration. Selectees already in training have received notice that their tour of service would not be extended.

An announcement from Hyde Park Sunday fixed 900,000 as the number of trainees to be inducted into the land forces in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Admits Marines Lost at Sea

Steamer Carrying U. S. Marines, Nurses Torpedoed

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Navy Monday confirmed that a foreign-flag steamer carrying American marines to London had been torpedoed but gave out no figures on the loss of life.

The announcement did not name the ship but previous reports from authorized officials said it was the Dutch vessel, Maarsden, now in Britain service. The same source said one marine was lost.

In addition to marines, Undersecretary of state Sumner Wells, said there was a number of American Red Cross nurses aboard.

Neither Wells or the Red Cross would say how many.

Miss Mary Beard, director of the Red Cross, was notified that six nurses were safe, but if "it is the Maarsden that was sunk we have many more on it," she said.

Upholds School Bond Issue

Lakeside School Authorized to Issue New Bonds

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)— The supreme court Monday upheld the constitutionality of the 1941 act authorizing the schools districts of more than a million dollars' assessed valuation to increase their bonded indebtedness from 7 to 8 per cent of the valuation to place finances on a cash basis.

The high tribunal ruled that Lakeside school of Chicago county could legally issue an additional $42,714 worth of 4 per cent bonds.

Proving Ground Pulpwood and Lumber to Go

Prescott & Northwestern Establishes Headquarters at Belton

Vast logging and pulpwood operations are commencing in northern Hempstead county to clear away timber holdings lying within the upper part of the War Department's Proving Ground. The Star learned authoritatively Monday.

The Southern Kraft corporation, Camden, a division of International Paper & Paper Co., alone has 18 40-acre tracts contract for cutting and delivery being held by Ozan Lumber company, Prescott.

Ozan Lumber company has set up a logging depot at Belton, on the Prescott & Northwestern railroad, installing a five-eighths-yard power shovel and graving 1,000 feet for the use of trucks along the siding.

A daily log train is expected to start on the P. & N. W. Tuesday, in order to run out logs ahead of the pulpwood, there being several independent logging operations in the same area.

Battle for Labor
The logging and pulpwood operations started in Hempstead county set up a rivalry over the week-end in Nashville, heart of the peach orchard country, where the harvesting of the Elberta crop is only 15 to 20 days off. Peas were expected in some Nashville quarters that the pulpwood operations would drive off labor normally employed in the peach harvest. But this view was contradicted by lumbermen, who said the prevailing wage scale in the woods was not calculated to interfere with the peach harvest.

And W. B. Thomas, secretary of Nashville Chamber of Commerce, told The Star Monday that the general feeling was that construction of the War Department's Proving Ground near Hope might be a real threat to the peach orchard labor supply if heavy construction gets under way before the harvest is actually started.

1,000-Car Siding Here
The Star also learned Monday from a reliable railroad source that the Missouri Pacific will build a 1,000-car siding or spur just north of Hope to serve the Proving Ground. This is in addition to the 16 miles of railroad scheduled for construction inside the Proving Ground by the general contractor and for military use only.

The Missouri Pacific's outside spur will be required because it is estimated that construction of the Proving Ground will require a solid trainload of materials each day during the peak of work.

British Planes Make Day Raids

Bombers Blast German Industrial Cities

LONDON —(AP)— British bombers roared into a daylight offensive against the northwestern German cities of Bremen and Oldenburg, the air ministry announced Monday, and battered at German shipping and island bases off the Netherlands coast.

Two German merchantships of 3,000 and 6,000 tons were set fire and believed sunk off the island of Norddey, by RAF explosives.

Docks and a radio station on the German-held Dutch island of Terschelling also were attacked and south west of the island a Nazi patrol ship was reported bombed and destroyed.

One Nazi plane was shot down while the British lost none, the announcement said.

The RAF utilized clouds to screen the attacks, which followed night raids that were declared to have started large fires and caused much damage at Hamburg and Bremen. It was the first daylight attack by the RAF since June 2 when the Keil Canal was bombed.

Under False Colors

TOPEKA, Kas. —(AP)— Some of the wheat that won the milling and baking contest at the state fair last fall was planted this season. When it came up it wasn't the Temur strain that it was supposed to be.

A nation-wide drive for enough scrap aluminum to build 650 bombing planes is to be launched. Out of the frying pan into the fire.

Wedding Rites for Julia Lemley, Fred Ellis Held Saturday

An impressive ceremony at six o'clock Saturday evening Miss Julia Chester Lemley, daughter of Judge and Mrs. W. Kendall Lemley, became the bride of Fred Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ellis Sr., Sedalia, Missouri, in the garden of the Lemley home on Edgewood Avenue with Dr. Thomas Brewster, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiating.

At one end of the walled-in garden was placed an improvised altar with Doric columns interspersed with lilies, which formed a background for the large white floor.

At the other end of the garden, a white altar was placed with a white cloth and white flowers. The bride and groom were seated on a white sofa.

Following the wedding service, a reception was held in the garden for the guests. The bride's table was covered with a white organza cloth.

The bride and groom were surrounded by a large number of guests. The bride wore a blue and white gown with a long train.

The bride's bouquet was composed of white lilies and white roses. The groom wore a dark suit with a white shirt and a dark tie.

The bride and groom were accompanied by their parents. The bride's father, Judge W. Kendall Lemley, was the best man.

The bride and groom were married by Dr. Thomas Brewster. The ceremony was held in the garden of the Lemley home.

SERIAL STORY

ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE

BY DONNA ASHWORTH

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER I

At the Parisian Night Club there was the sound of laughter and excited voices. Ice tinkled in glasses. Waiters hovered about. The fragrance of perfume filled the air as the familiar crowd moved about, dancing, laughing, dining.

Everybody who had any money was there. Everybody who counted was there. The Parisian stood at the top of the list of popular night clubs.

Jim Coon, suave orchestra leader, stood before a microphone, smiling a little as he watched the crowd, saying the words which he knew almost everybody had come to hear.

"For our next number we take great pleasure in presenting Lita Damson and Jerry Lane—the world's most famous dance team."

Lita, just out of sight of the crowd, looked across at Jerry. Once she had thrilled to the lights, the swing of the music, the applause, but not any more. She was tired of it all, and yet she had to go on, go on with Jerry, who like everything else was fast ceasing to mean anything.

Her cue. She fixed a bright smile to her scarlet lips and lifted her golden head high. She was outside the curtain now. Before her was the after-theater crowd.

The lights, the waiters, the things she had once dreamed about. Behind her was the best orchestra in the country. Beside her was Jerry, tall and straight, with an enchanting smile which had once done things to her heart.

Once she had adored his sleek black hair and shining brown eyes, the way he laughed and tensed her, and most of all, because he had loved her when she had need of love. He loved her still, she guessed, but five years of marriage had taken the glamor away.

Now there wasn't anything. He didn't thrill her any more, and they quarreled over nothing. She knew it was high-strung nerves, but all the same it was wearing.

She stood bowing, laughing, her white teeth gleaming. Beyond in the mirrors she could catch a glimpse of herself through the haze of smoke, the shimmering gold of her frock which clung to her slim figure and hung in a hundred folds about her ankles, as gold as her shining hair.

Her green eyes laughed beneath long curling lashes. She had to laugh. She was expected to. She must be happy because everybody thought she was—the beautiful young dancer with the handsome husband.

Applause rolled like a wave. The orchestra swung into a dance tune. She and Jerry were dancing, a wild Latin dance which had put their names in electric lights. More madly her dancing feet kept time. Jerry swung her about, but as she danced he smiled at her.

"I'm sorry I made you angry, darling. Forgive me," he whispered, as his lips swept close to hers.

The audience liked for them to smile at each other. The people watching thought they were in love. They didn't know that love was dying. Or was it dead? Sometimes she wondered.

They stopped at last, bowing, hand in hand. Wave on wave

Jerry swung her about, but she was sure of his strength, and as they danced he smiled at her. "I'm sorry I made you angry, darling. Forgive me," he whispered, as his lips swept close to hers.

of applause rolled through the room. They danced again, an encore that was even faster and more mad than their first dance had been.

As they smiled and bowed, she tossed laughing words to Jerry. "Let's hurry. You know I'll be waiting, and you know how impatient she is."

Ruth Eustace and Jerry. She had been thinking about that for a long time, only Jerry didn't know it, nor Ruth. She wondered if Jerry was really in love with Ruth. She knew that Ruth was in love with him.

As they made their way through the crowd, she thought about herself and Jerry. It didn't seem to matter if they quarreled. He was so over his anger. He couldn't seem to see that things were over between them, too, or he didn't want to.

She didn't want the things that she could give herself, that Jerry could give her. She was tired of dancing, tired of the superficiality of the life they lived, tired of the masked faces about them, of the people who were pretending to be enjoying life, when she knew so many of them weren't.

They bowed here and there, nodding, always laughing, as they went toward the table in the corner where a group waited for them.

"Ruth," Lita came up to the dark-haired girl who stood up as they approached. "At last, we're here." Her voice was gay. She must keep on pretending, the happy young dancer; Jerry beside her, the idol of every debutante.

"Hello, Ruth. We danced as fast as we could." Jerry caught Ruth's hands in his. "But the music only goes so fast, you know."

"You were grand," Ruth's voice answered them. She turned to the crowd about the table. "I think you and Jerry know everybody except Ken Richards, the dark, tall man from the south, at my right. He has lost his head completely, Lita. You have his heart in your hand. I didn't know it happened like that."

"I didn't either," Lita answered

WE, THE WOMEN

Here's a Father's Day Memento Any Dad Will Long Remember

By RUTH MILLETT

It's easy to tell a soft-faced mother just how important she is to you, and what she has meant in your life.

It's a lot harder to tell a gruff-voiced, embarrassed father that he was just as necessary to your development from a child into a mature adult with a fairly clear understanding of your responsibilities to others and to yourself.

So the way it turns out is this: your mother goes through life with the comforting knowledge that she is appreciated, loved, and perhaps even a bit idealized by her children. But your father probably feels that all he has contributed to his children's growth and well-being are the things bought for them (like clothes and an education) with the money he earned.

If you make use of it in the right way, Father's Day will give you a chance to break through the usual restraint between a father and his children to show him that isn't so.

That doesn't mean picking out a necktie in ten minutes and enclosing a "To a Dear Dad" printed card on which you hastily scrawl your name.

It means taking advantage of the opportunity for letting your father know some of the ways in which he has contributed to your happiness and success as a person and some of the reasons why you are proud of him.

A GIFT THAT WILL MEAN MUCH

Maybe you can't look him straight in the eye and tell him so. It might be too embarrassing for you both. But you certainly can write him a letter and say anything you feel.

It doesn't matter if you are still living under his roof. There's no law against writing a letter to a person you see every day. In fact, a letter might mean more to your "old man" than anything you could say.

For if he likes he can show the letter to your mother under the pretext of letting her know that you're a pretty nice kid after all. He might

BEER INDUSTRY ENDORSES IDEAL OF MODERATION

Paul-President American Medical Association States Ideal of True Temperance

"All observers are agreed that some form of social beverage is demanded. Beer as it is consumed by a vast majority is non-intoxicating and harmless and therefore the ideal beverage. True temperance is the goal we should strive for. The two poles of intemperance are prohibition on the one hand and drunkenness on the other."

Brewers and Dealers Co-operating in CLEAN-UP Campaign

Realizing its responsibility to the public, the beer industry of America is cooperating with law enforcement officials to assure citizens that only reputable dealers will have the privilege of selling beer.

Especially active during this stressed period of national defense, the Brewers and Arkansas Beer Distributors Committee is alert to see that beer is sold in surroundings as wholesome as the product itself.

You Can Help in This "Clean-Up" Campaign

Because beer brings so much enjoyment to so many people, the good name of beer deserves to be guarded ceaselessly. The Brewers and Arkansas Beer Distributors Committee is keeping guard both day and night, but such efforts are not adequate unless supported by you.

You can exert your influence in this campaign by patronizing only those places which meet with your own high standard of approval. Your help and understanding of this "Clean-Up or Close-Up" campaign will go a long way toward establishing moderation as a part of the great American tradition.

Any New Movie Plots on Your Chest?

HOLLYWOOD — About 50 per cent of the new and forthcoming books seem to be bigger war stories and politico-historical stuff unfit for filming, so the studios are going to have pretty slim pickings from the new literary season. There will be fewer books anyway, with almost nothing coming from Europe.

The picture-makers, anticipating the famine, bought more Broadway plays than ever before and have bid them in at generally higher prices. Paramount's $283,000 for "Lady in the Dark" was the top bid Columbia forked over $225,000 for "My Sister Eileen."

It's telling what fantastic sum will be paid for the rights to "Life With Father." No telling, either, what mayhem will be committed on the bodies of various scripts before they're rewritten and reach the screen.

It's likely, though, if precedent means anything, that the best pictures and largest profits will come from adaptations by good craftsmen.

Blue Eagle Without Claws May Fly Again

WASHINGTON — Brand-new defense "Industry Committees," which would practically have all the powers of old NRA Code Authorities, recently have been given the informal stamp of approval by the Department of Justice.

If that sentence doesn't exactly set you back on your heels this beautiful June day, let it sink into your mind until it reaches bone, and then react accordingly. For if ever there was anything which most consumers, middlemen and producers never expected to see in this land again, it was a return of even a faint smelt of the embalming fluid with which the Supreme Court laid away all that remained of the late and unlamented NRA blue eagle.

But all-out defense cleans out all. And the idea that industry control might be given legal sanction today returns through an interesting but rather complex chain of events which, if you'd care to follow, is something like this:

OPM Spills the Surprise

First inkling that something like this was afoot came through the recent sensational announcement from Donald M. Nelson, director of purchases in the Office of Production Management, outlining a plan to increase defense production capacity by limiting the lines of merchandise that might be manufactured and sold for civilian consumption.

To make a thing like this effective, there must be some form of industry control. Since the Supreme Court had outlawed NRA and since the whole idea of NRA is repugnant to Thurman Arnold's anti-trust division of the Department of Justice, some formula had to be found to permit manufacturers of radio sets, for example, to get together and agree to reduce from 20 to 10 the number of home models which each would make.

Canny John Lord O'Brien, general counsel of OPM, put the problem up to the justice boys and in a letter which Attorney General Jackson wrote to Mr. O'Brien a couple of months ago, but which is just now being privately circulated in Washington, the whole procedure of "Industry Committees" is outlined and given Department of Justice blessing. This letter will probably go down as the charter authority for whatever industry controls are created, and if the war lasts long enough, it is a fairly safe bet that these committees in some way will be controlling practically everything you buy or sell.

What the attorney general's letter outlines is the creation of separate Industry Committees to act in an advisory capacity within the framework of the Office of Production Management (Knudsen-Hillman, Nelson, Biggers, Stettinius and company) and the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply (Leon Henderson). The Industry Committee, in other words, cannot become the "code authority" for that industry. OPM and OPACS combined retain all the and gawking at the stars. They were riding around Beverly Hills while guides pointed out the dwelling places of oomph and celluloid virility. They were attending cocktail parties given by various companies to meet Gloria Gossage or Sandra O'Schultz. Or they were out at Hollywood Park watching the movie folk who were watching the races.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. When driving on downtown streets, is it good manners for a motorist to blow his horn at pedestrians who are crossing a street with the green light?
2. When several persons are walking on a city sidewalk, should string out across the sidewalk, or walk by twos?
3. Is it good manners to turn around and stare at a stranger you pass on the street or in a store?
4. If a clerk has been particularly helpful in seeing that you find just the article you want, should you thank him?
5. If you return an unsatisfactory article to a store, is there any excuse for running down the store to the employee whose duty it is to make exchanges?

What would you do if —

Someone pays your wife or husband a compliment when talking to you—

(a) Say, "Thank you?"

(b) Feel that it is necessary to belittle whatever accomplishment is being praised since the person being complimented is a member of your family?

Answers

1. No.
2. They should walk by twos.
3. No. It is very rude.
4. Certainly.
5. No.

Best "What Would You Do" solution—(a). You can even agree wholeheartedly with the person's opinion.
